Tents

Tent prices include the cost of setup and teardown during regular delivery times, with the exception of popup and over the counter tents. Additional delivery charges may apply for setup or teardown outside of normal delivery times, for site-specific installations, and/or exceptional locations.

Frame Tents

Frame Tents differ from Stake and Pole Tents because they rely on an aluminum frame for support rather than using tension. This eliminates the need for center poles. Frame Tents are also more adaptable--especially in site-specific installations where staking is not permitted. In these cases, Frame Tents can be used with water barrel weights*. (*Water barrel weights do not provide the same holding power as stakes. All tent manufacturers state that they are unsafe for securing tents. For this reason, Lasting Impressions Event Rentals strongly discourages the use of water barrels for any installation except when absolutely necessary.)

We also sell tents in multiple color combinations and with custom graphics.

Track Tents

Our Track Tents are a hybrid of a Clearspan and a Frame Tent. The tops of these tents slide through an aluminum frame. These tops can be either the traditional tent shape or be gable-ended for a more open area. The gable-end can be either open or tented. This tent is ideal for large high-end events & long-term installations. Track tents come in 30', 40', and 50' wide.

Pole Tents come in two varieties: High Peak Pole Tents and Traditional Stake & Pole Tents. High Peak offer an open high-peaked dramatic look. Traditional Stake & Pole Tents are the least expensive type of tent and may include quarter poles as well as center poles. The layout of both types must consider the interior poles. Also, Pole Tents must be setup on level ground and must have allow additional feet on each side for staking.

Guide to Choosing a Tent

Lasting Impressions offers a variety of tent sizes and styles to accommodate every type of event. Our sales staff will gladly help you choose the style and size of tent to suit your needs. Below are some guidelines to consider.

1) Size - Maximum seating can be accomplished by using 72” round tables or making long rows of banquet tables. Here are a few space requirements to be used when determining the size of a tent.

Cocktail Party (standing).....	5-6 sq. feet per person
Cocktail Party (some seated).....	8 sq. feet per person
Dinner Seating.....	10-14 sq. feet per person
Theater-style Seating.....	6 sq. feet per person
Classroom Seating.....	6-8 sq. feet per person
Dance Floor Size.....	2-4 sq. feet per person
Stage for a band.....	at least 10 sq. feet per person
Bar.....	50-100 sq. feet
Buffet.....	at least 100 sq. feet

2) CAD Design - Our sales staff can make a CAD drawing of your event showing seating, buffets, dance floor, etc.

3) Style - The style of tent used will be based on three factors -- appearance, space restrictions, and installation restrictions. Pole Tents offer an open high-peaked dramatic look. However, the interior layout must consider the center poles. Also, Pole Tents must be setup on level ground and must have five additional feet on each side for staking. Frame Tents can fit into tight spaces because stakes can be placed near the frame. Water barrel weights can sometimes be used where staking is not available. One Frame Tent can be easily attached to another to add room for buffets, bars, and entrance ways. Future Track Tents combine the best features of both the Pole Tents and Frame Tents. Future Track Tents offer high ceilings, have no center poles, and can fit into tight spaces. Also, Future Track Tents can be gable-ended to allow maximum height throughout the entire tent; this can be helpful when a stage needs to be put at an end of a tent. The ability to withstand a higher wind load makes this tent ideal for longer installations.

4) Site Inspections - Our tent crew will visit your site to make sure the tent you have chosen can be installed. We look for obstacles which could prevent the proper installation of a tent. The site inspection fee of $25 will be applied towards the tent rental.

5) OUPS - Lasting Impressions will contact the Ohio Utilities Protection Service to mark all underground utility lines. The utility companies will mark their lines, however, it is the land owners responsibility to mark all private lines, including sprinkler systems. There is no requirement to be present when the lines are marked. We prefer if the area to be tented is clearly marked with white flags or paint, If you have any questions regarding OUPS marking, please visit their website at www.oups.org
